Dear Kofi,

Evelyn and I are writing to invite you to a small lunch on Monday, March 1, at our home (435 East 52nd Street, New York City) at 12:30 p.m. for our friend, London publisher, George Weidenfeld. He would like to brief you about the AMEURUS (America - Europe - Russia) trilateral initiative after their Second Annual meeting in Washington DC, which will have concluded on February 28.

As you may know, AMEURUS is a group of leaders in diverse public and private fields from Europe, Russia and America, who meet to address major strategic obstacles to closer cooperation between the three, and explore long-term perspectives for collaboration on wider global issues.

Participants at the Washington meetings will include Martti Ahtisaari, the ex-President of Finland; Joe Nye, Dean of the John F Kennedy School of Government; Sir Jeremy Greenstock, British representative to Iraq and former British Ambassador to the United Nations; Lord Charles Guthrie, the UK's former Chief of Defense Staff; Ambassador Gebhard von Moltke, German Ambassador to NATO; Peter Mandelson, British Member of Parliament; Michael Portillo, British Conservative Politician; Justice Sandra O'Connor; Senator John Warner and an impressive group of Russian leaders.

George, with whom Evelyn and I are associated in this initiative, would like to make you aware of the proceedings in Washington, as well as the future activities of AMEURUS. We hope that this luncheon will be a convenient time for you. Please call Linda Chang in my office and let us know if you are able to attend (212-403-3683).

Looking forward to seeing you.

Sincerely,
Mark Loue,
